WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

Today through Friday daily record high temperatures were plentiful yesterday and another warm day is expected with temperatures a solid 20 degrees above normal across most of the forecast area. Broad southerly flow ahead of an offshore upper low is maintaining these high temperatures. Today likely won't feature as many record temperatures but readings will get within a few degrees of records.

Eureka Weather:

An upper level trough will bring a cooling trend for the remainder of the week with increasing rain chances late in the week.

Reno Weather:

High pressure will keep winds light and temperatures well above seasonal averages through midweek. On Tuesday there will be a slight chance of a few showers and an isolated thunderstorm or two in the Sierra. A colder and wetter system will bring better chances for rain and mountain snow towards the end of the week.

San Francisco Weather:

A slight cooling trend will begin today and persist through late week as a series of upper level systems approach the West Coast. The more potent of the two systems will bring the potential for widespread rainfall to the region from late Thursday night into Friday. Temperatures then warm slightly and chances for precipitation diminish through the upcoming weekend.

Sacramento Weather:

An area of high pressure will continue warm temperatures today. A series of upper level disturbances will bring cooler temperatures increasing chances for precipitation by the end of the week.

WEATHER

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

High pressure will continue to build over the area with mainly clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures. The high will break down on Wednesday allowing for a cooling trend to take place. Low pressure will then move into the region on Friday bringing a chance of precipitation and cooler than normal temperatures.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A slight cooling trend through Wednesday as high pressure weakens and onshore flow returns. More significant cooling expected Thursday through this weekend. Low clouds and fog with more significant cooling are slated for Thursday and Friday. A weak storm system is expected to move into the region by Friday bringing a chance of showers.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure aloft near the west coast will weaken with slow cooling spreading inland through Wednesday. A low pressure system will move inland through California Thursday night through early Saturday bringing greater cooling gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts deepening of the marine layer greater coverage of night and morning coastal low clouds and fog and a chance for light precipitation for late Friday into early Saturday. Another low pressure system with greater uncertainty could bring another chance of showers around late Sunday into early Monday.

Southeast California Weather:

Strengthening high pressure will bring clear skies and a warming trend to the region through Thursday with highs approaching 100 degrees at the warmest lower desert locations on Wednesday and Thursday. A series of pacific low pressure system will then bring cooler temperatures and unsettled conditions to the region from Friday onward into at least the early part of next week.
